

Abstract by Timothy Byrne - Using preference survey approaches to define breeding goals.

Breeding objectives are usually derived using bio-economic models. However preference-based approaches offer another means of assessing the appropriate values of desirable traits in breeding programmes. They are especially useful when considering traits that have no clear economic values.